GUERRILLAISM IN MISSOURI.—A correspondent of the Missouri Democrat, writing from Farmington, Missouri, Sept. 29th, says:

At an early hour on Tuesday or Wednesday night last, as Addison Murphy, who resides near Big River Mills, was quietly walking along the road leading from his farm to the farm of his brother, Captain Frank Murphy, he was suddenly and unexpectedly fired upon by a party of persons standing in the edge of the road, and at a distance of about twenty-five feet. Murphy having his revolver in his belt, coolly drew it from the scabbard, and calmly taking aim, fired once, twice, thrice, with due deliberation. At the third fire from Murphy's revolver one of the bushwhackers set up a most unearthly scream, and Murphy, thinking he had made his mark, immediately "double quicked" himself to another locality. On the next morning, Murphy, accompanied by his brother, Captain Frank Murphy, proceeded to the battle ground of the previous night to make an inspection of the field and endeavor to learn all they could about this alarming and unexpected affair. On arriving at the spot where the shooting took place they found the tracks of three men at the edge of the road, but could find no horse tracks. They then concluded that the men had been citizens, and regarded the whole affair as a most unfortunate rencounter, brought about by meeting each other in the dark at night. After looking around for some time they fortunately happened to observe that a spot of green grass near by was bent down, and, upon examining it, they found that a man had lain there.

From this bed in the grass the occupant had walked to a spring about fifty yards distant, doubtless to get a drink, and as a heavy rain had fallen during the night and the ground was soft, Murphy had no difficulty in tracing him. Near the spring at which the bushwhacker had drank Captain Frank Murphy has lately had a ditch dug, about waist deep, for the purpose of draining some ground, and across that ditch at one point was a pole. The bushwhacker, after leaving the spring, beat round considerably in the bushes, till at last he either fell in or had stepped into this ditch, and from the signs he was too weak to get out till he came to the pole, which enabled him to crawl out. At the pole across the ditch Murphy and the Captain found a lump of human flesh and two large clots of blood, and a pocketbook containing papers, affording them satisfactory evidence that they were pursuing the bloody tracks of the notorious Sam. Hildebrand. Captain Murphy immediately went to Big River Mills and called out the militia, and scoured the whole country, but without finding any of the bushwhackers. Here is an exact copy of one of the papers found in Hildebrand's pocketbook.

Greenbacks	$40 [illegible]
Merchandise	[illegible]

That is the amount it is supposed that Hildebrand succeeded in safely getting to Arkansas at the time he robbed Taylor's store in the north end of this county, and lost two men in a fight with Lieutenant Brown, of the Perry county militia. The expression above, "To member Link," I will here explain. Link was a noted bushwhacker from St. Louis, and in September, 1864, Dr. Keith ascertained that he was at a [illegible] house in this county, and immediately informed Lieutenant Chris. Helber, of Company F, Forty-seventh Missouri, who immediately went after Link and killed him and a man [illegible] Keith, and broke up a regular nest of guerrillas in a locality known as Flat river. The Hill referred to is Robert J. Hill, an old and highly respected citizen of this county, whose loyalty is widely known.

It is to be hoped that Sam. Hildebrand has now been here on his last scout. We strongly believe that his corpse is now lying in some thicket not far from the ditch where he struggled so hard to mount a bank only three feet high.

ENGLISH CAPITALISTS IN THE U. S.—A number of the most wealthy capitalists of England arrived last month at New York. Their object is to make themselves acquainted with the resources of the country, preparatory, in all probability, to making permanent investments in railroads and other paying stocks. On the 17th of October they visited the President at Washington. A dispatch thus relates what passed at the interview:

The English capitalists arrived this morning in a special train over the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, at 11 o'clock. The party, accompanied by Robert J. Walker, visited the Executive mansion and were presented to the President by Walker. The President greeted each one separately, and the interview soon became a most pleasant and social one. President Johnson, in conversation with Sir Morton Peto, member of Parliament, gave his views of the immense resources of this country, and the advantages they presented to capitalists everywhere. His allusions to the State of Tennessee attracted the fixed attention of the entire party. He elaborated upon the great natural attraction for capital and enterprise which every portion of that State presents. The President gave them some important information in that respect. He then alluded to the general condition of the country and the prospect of the thorough restoration of the Union and successful working of civil power so soon on the heels of a gigantic conflict. He adverted to the rapid spirit of enterprise and improvement abroad throughout the land, and to the harmonious relations existing between us and the mother country. The delegation were very much impressed with the President's conversational powers, and gratified at the informal, democratic interview they received. In connection, they expressed themselves in approval of his policy as leading to a permanent peace and the perpetuity of the Union. To-morrow they make a trip over the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, in a special train, to Harper's Ferry, Monocacy and Martinsburg, visiting at the same time some of the battle-fields in the vicinity of those places.

THE HOMESTEAD ACT OF 1862.—The following is the first section of the Homestead Law, enacted in 1862:

Any person who is the head of a family, or who has arrived at the age of twenty-one years, and is a citizen of the United States, or shall have filed his declaration of intention to become such, as required by the naturalization laws of the United States, and who has never borne arms against the United States Government, or given aid and comfort to its enemies, shall, from and after the 1st of January, 1863, be entitled to enter one quarter section or less quantity, of unappropriated public lands, upon which said person may have filed a pre-emption claim, or which may, at the time the application is made, be subject to pre-emption at $1 25, or less, per acre, or eighty acres or less of unappropriated lands, at $2 50 per acre to be located in a body, in conformity to the legal subdivisions of the public lands, and after the same shall have been surveyed: Provided, That any person owning and residing on land may, under the provisions of this act, enter other land lying contiguous to his or her said land, which shall not, with the land so already owned and occupied, exceed in the aggregate 160 acres.

HOGS.—Keep fattening hogs in clean comfortable quarters. Feed well and regularly with ground and cooked food. Give a few handfuls of powdered charcoal dampened, and sprinkled with meal. It is an excellent tonic. Keep the hogs clean and change their bedding as it becomes dirty. When unground and uncooked corn is to be fed, begin as soon as it glazes, as it is then more digestible.—American Agriculturist.

The Call says the total losses by the people who have dealt in the once favorite mining stocks for the last two years will swell up the sum of over $40,000,000.

The Daily Oregonian.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE STATE

WEDNESDAY MORNING, NOV. 22, 1865.

Too Large Farms

Among experienced and scientific agriculturists it is not thought so important to possess a great breadth of land as to improve and properly cultivate smaller farms. In the East, and even throughout the States in the Mississippi valley, men of moderate means who devote themselves to agriculture are satisfied with small farms, because they understand that good tillage of a narrow breadth of land is far more remunerative than a partial cultivation of larger fields. They understand, too, that a great farm from its very size must necessarily be more inconvenient in its various arrangements than a smaller one, and that where a large farmer does not possess sufficient capital to employ labor to conduct his whole business, to improve his farm in the best style and to make it complete in all its appointments much will be lost in its management. Besides it is well known that the profits of a farm do not increase in proportion as it is enlarged. A farmer wants just room enough, no more. To have too much land and to attempt to cultivate it, will, in general, prove just as unprofitable as to possess too little. To attempt to carry on a large farm, with limited means, is precisely like an endeavor to perform any other work which is wholly beyond one's strength. The effort will meet with indifferent success, or will wholly fail.

These remarks are made in view of the existing state of things in Oregon. Our farms, for the most part, are far too large. One result of this is that lands which, in the present state of the markets ought to yield profitable crops, are lying entirely idle. Another result is the very imperfect cultivation of those which go through the form of being tilled. The farmer wastes his strength and his resources in the endeavor to produce crops from all his fields. Seasons come when his work presses him, and at such times he either finds that he cannot get help at all, or that if he does obtain it, the greater part of his crop is consumed to pay for saving the balance. He therefore concludes that farming is a very unprofitable business, and resolves that he will follow it no longer. Hence his lands thereafter lie idle, when with proper management they could be made to yield highly remunerative returns. The fault is not that his occupation will not pay; his failure is owing to the unwise and unmethodical manner in which his business is conducted.

The productive capacity of this valley is very great, but it will never be known how great it is until our farms are divided so that the rich lands of which we boast can be brought into cultivation. The country will never be capable of performing any very great and important work, or of engaging successfully in any of the pursuits and industries which make a community prosperous, wealthy and powerful, until by a division of our lands we make room for more inhabitants so that labor may be supplied in greater abundance and production be thus increased. Under the present order of things we shall never be able to construct that necessary work, a valley railroad; and we take leave to doubt whether, if this railroad were already built, we could now keep it running with any profit whatever on the money invested. To sustain a railroad, a populous community will be required, and this we can never have unless holders of large bodies of lands will consent to dispose of portions of their possessions.

The better way for those who own more land than they can make profitable use of, would be to sell their surplus, even at low prices. They could then easily manage the remainder, and make more money off of it than they now do from the whole. In this way our population would be gradually increased and we should sometime attain to the wealth, importance and dignity of a great State.

"INFANDUM DOLOREM." — The Confederate Democrat comes to us, surcharged with grief and sobbing out its words of mournful indignation because of the execution of its admired friend, Henry Wirz. The Democrat dwells on the many virtues of him whose decease it mourns. It calls him a "guiltless, helpless man," and informs us that "Stanton paid perjured witnesses to swear the unfortunate man's life away." It asserts there was no evidence to convict the accused innocent. In witnessing the Democrat's unutterable anguish it is well to remember that this is its first burst of agony—its first despairing wail over the tomb of the departed, and that a period of calmness must succeed this violent outburst of overpowering grief. But it will not soon forget the fate of its fellow "Democrat," Henry Wirz. It will continue to talk of him as a martyr. It will refuse to be comforted for its loss. Months hence we expect to have to say of it, that,

> "Punctual as lovers to the moment sworn,
> It keeps its assignation with its woe."

"That Government which, in the hands of a party, visits criminal punishment upon any portion of the people for a mere difference of political opinion, or for a political error, cannot long resist the public opinion of the world."

We find the above sentence in a lengthy Copperhead address which we have just perused in an Oregon Copperhead newspaper. So then, the great rebellion was nothing more than "a mere difference of political opinion." How exceedingly criminal the conduct of the Government in not tolerating this little "difference of opinion," and permitting its own overthrow. The language above given is but a sample of that whereby the Copperheads justify the late rebellion and applaud the actors in the great conspiracy to divide our country.

THE SPECIAL ELECTIONS.—Yamhill county has elected J. M. Pierce, Esq., (Union) to the Legislature by a majority of seventy five votes over [illegible], the Copperhead nominee. But little interest was taken in the election, and the vote was small.

In Clackamas, Arthur Warner, Esq. (Union) is elected. The Copperheads of that county finding New Jersey lost, gave up the contest without an effort. And this is the emasculate party which the "Democratic" journals tell us is to triumph next June! Why, they don't dare even to name candidates, much less should they talk about electing them.

The "Democracy" it appears have carried the election at the great city of the Dalles. Here's a windfall, truly. A "victory" just in the nick of time. We hear shouts of exultation already. The Dalles goes with Idaho and Montana making the third important "Democratic" victory within a few months. The last triumph fully compensated them for their loss of New Jersey and for their defeat in every other Northern State. The party is ajoy again. The Review will be jubilant. "Where's the 'Democrat' who desponds? A victory is gained! Spread the tidings abroad!"

One of our Copperhead papers is whining because General Augur won't permit the chivalry of Virginia to flog negroes within his military district! High handed and unjustifiable interference with the ancient rights of noble Virginians! Where will tyranny end?

THE TELEGRAPH.—The late severe storms have interrupted telegraphic communications in every direction. At present the line is working no farther than to Vancouver on the north and Oregon City on the south.

In 1864 Illinois produced more than one-fourth of the corn, more than one fifth of the wheat and nearly one seventh of the oats grown in all the United States. So says the report of the Commissioner of Agriculture.

MONTANA NEWS.—Mr. Saunders, [illegible] of the Dalles, has just returned from Montana Territory. He left Blackfoot City on the 1st of October, and reports that at the time of his departure snow had fallen in the mines to the depth of from six to ten inches. There was but little snow in spots in Deer Lodge Valley and a light fall had occurred in Hellgate Ronde, but had gone off and the weather there was delightful. He found snow down the Hellgate Cañon to within ten miles of Big Blackfoot. In consequence of the cold weather, washing was pretty much suspended in the mines, but drifting operations continued with unabated energy.

The trade at Blackfoot City was quiet and the following are the prices of leading articles: Flour—Salt Lake per hundred pounds $[illegible]; Oregon $25@26, and some talk of advancing the price to $28. Bacon—large sales of Oregon at 50 cts, retailing at 55@60c. Lard retailing at 60@70c. Beans, 40 cts, with sales of damaged and inferior at 35c. Butter—Isthmus $1; ranch $1.00. Coffee, Rio 90c; Costa Rica $1; ground $1. Tea, common black $2.25; Japan use $2.75@$3.25; choice green $3.00. Dried Fruit—States apples, 62@65c; California peaches 75c; States peaches 65c. Sugar, Sandwich Island 55c; S. F. refined 60c; crushed [illegible]; New Orleans, 60@65c. Syrup—S. F. gallon [illegible]; gallon kegs $27.50; Belcher's St. Louis $50 per 20 gallon keg. Fresh beef was retailing at 18@20 cts per pound. The new diggings on the tributaries of the Big Blackfoot are situated about fifty miles from Hellgate between Hellgate and Big Blackfoot rivers. Most of the ground yet proven to be good is on the tributaries of Elk Creek which flows out of the dividing ridge between the two rivers, and empties into Big Blackfoot river ten miles below Stevens Prairie. Diggings on the same range have been found north of the Big Blackfoot. These new discoveries are fifty miles this side of the Little Blackfoot mines and are by that distance closer to the sources of supply on the Pacific side. There are about six hundred men in the new district, and they are generally very short of supplies and nearly destitute of the principal conveniences of miner's life. These new mines are of particular importance to the commercial community on this side of the mountains as they are nearly as close to the head of navigation on Snake river as to Fort Benton and within a day's ride of Hellgate Valley—the agricultural district nearest to them. The prosperity of this valley secures a lucrative trade to this side in any event, and that prosperity is enhanced by the existence of such mines close to it.

Mr. Brooks brought back several fine specimens of gold quartz, and one specimen of galena, holding mechanically a large piece of gold. This is a combination hitherto, we believe, unheard of.—Mountaineer.

ATTEMPTED ESCAPE OF DR. MUDD.—We have obtained from an officer of the steamer Thomas A. Scott, the full particulars of Dr. Mudd's attempted escape, differing in many accounts from the particulars hitherto published. The prisoners at the Tortugas are allowed the liberty of the island except on the day of a vessel's departure. At night they are expected to sleep within the fort. The night previous to the return of the A. J. Scott Dr. Mudd slept outside the fort in a shed, and the next morning he quietly walked on board the steamer, disappeared into the lowest deck and sent a fireman for Quartermaster Kelley. This was the last that was seen of him. Soon after he was missed at the fort and an officer and squad sent down to search the vessel. On the very bottom of the vessel lay a platform resting on two cross beams; the officer thrust his sword under one side, and the colored soldier inserted a bayonet under the other. The roar of pain that immediately rose told that both sword and bayonet had reached their mark. The platform was raised and Dr. Mudd arose and returned to his status of a captive prisoner. He was immediately brought to the fort and the thumb screws applied to him and under the pressure of pain he acknowledged that Kelley with whom he had formed an acquaintance within a few days, had agreed to help him to escape on the promise of receiving Mudd's gold watch. Kelley was hereupon marched to the fort, a drum head court martial held, and he was sentenced to six years imprisonment and hard labor in the Tortugas. The vessel then sailed without Mudd or Kelly, and the papers were forwarded to Washington for confirmation.—N. Y. Tribune, Oct 11th.

DOES IT MEAN WAR AGAINST THE MORMONS?—We were permitted yesterday to peruse a private letter from Uniontown, Fayette county, Pennsylvania, written to a citizen of Portland, which contains the following paragraph:

"There are thousands and tens of thousands of men going over the plains this fall with wagon trains, all under the military control of the Government transporting supplies to the Rocky Mountains, and I understand a force of ten thousand infantry is on its way."

The statement may be exaggerated, but it leads one to inquire, what is the purpose of so large an expedition at this time, if it does not look to a change of Indian affairs or a modification of the Mormon system?

The same letter says of prices and things generally in Pennsylvania:

"There is every prospect of a hard winter here for poor people. Although grain and grass are abundant cattle and hogs are scarce and high. Flour and produce of all kinds are very high. We have no fruit at all, and very few potatoes. Wheat is over two dollars per bushel; potatoes $2 20 per bushel, and any kind of meat is 25 cts per pound. Fat hogs are selling at 12½ cts per pound on foot. Coal 8 cts per bushel. Butter 40 cts per pound, but money is plenty, and business of all kinds good."

The Mountaineer of yesterday has the following:

The Indian bands from White Salmon and the vicinity of Vancouver, to the number of one hundred and fifty eight souls, are now encamped at Rockland waiting transportation to Simcoe Reservation. The Cascades band has not yet come up the river, and a small band living opposite to Vancouver, has been elected to go upon the Grand Ronde Reservation.

A letter from Warm Springs states that on the 8th inst. a party of Snakes attacked four white men who were encamped thirty-five miles east of the Agency and the white men were compelled to abandon horses, arms, camp equipage and provisions, and flee for their lives.

At the election for Representative, yesterday the following vote was polled in this city:

R. A. Hogue	1[illegible]
N. H. Gates	243

The result in the city is a majority for Gates of 57. The election passed off very quietly.

A Richmond paper says: "Were the people of the North as anxious to supply the whole people of the South with plows, seeds, horses, mules, etc., as they are to furnish them with choice liquors the wail of poverty would soon cease to go up. In nearly one half of this city intoxicating liquors are sold, and there are at least twenty five wholesale establishments in the same compass, yet there are in the same limits but two seed and implement stores. This is not intended as a temperance lecture, but to show what the South needs to bring her out of trouble. She don't want the cup, but the plow and the anvil."

"Every morning we enter upon a new day which carries a yet unknown future in its bosom. Thoughts may be born to-day which may never expire, hopes may be excited which may never be extinguished, and acts may be performed to-day the consequence of which cannot be realized till that day, when 'the secrets of all hearts shall be made known.'"

Mankind may be divided into three classes: 1. Those who learn from the experience of others—they are happy men. 2. Those who learn from their own experience—they are wise men. 3. And lastly, those who learn neither from their own nor from other people's experience—they are fools.

Judge Ruskin in speaking of the fashionable passion for auburn locks, says: "I am informed, too, and I can add my personal testimony to the fact, the red haired girls who have been on the shelf until they are no longer young, are now going off in the matrimonial line like wild fire."

BOXING THE POPE'S EARS.—The first piece of artillery meeting the eye near the principal gate of Coburg Castle has a little figure of Luther on the barrel kneeling opposite that of the Pope and boxing his ears with equal satisfaction to himself and effect on the victim of his wrath.

CURIOUS.—A woman in New Jersey lately saved her husband from being hung, by wearing a "waterfall." He struck her over the back of the head with a gun barrel and the hirsute fixture prevented it from doing her any injury.

BEE TREE.—The Marysville Appeal says that C. W. Foster, residing about a mile from Yuba City one day last week cut down a bee tree containing 150 pounds of honey, nice and fresh.

ACCIDENT IN GRASS VALLEY.—William Taylor recently had his leg and foot badly mutilated in the Eureka mine, Grass Valley.

A National Bank has been chartered at Atlanta, Georgia.

A GOOD EXAMPLE.—In Illinois they are raising $500,000 for a soldier's orphans' free school.

Letter from Salem

SALEM, OREGON, Nov. 18th, 1865.

FRIEND OREGONIAN:

Here are a few items from this "beautiful capital of all Oregon" for your many readers.

All is aglow here in preparation for the approaching called Session. The State House is undergoing thorough repairs. Hammers, saws, paint brushes are the order of the day, so that the wise men will have at least, a comfortable room to deliberate in. Come on with your called session we are about ready for you! But you will like to know how ready. Why, just things cut and smoked and dried. Never did a parcel of [illegible] barter on the carcass of a dead sturgeon drifted ashore by the tide than have the cliques and parties of Salem of late to get things "cut and dried" for the called session. The "Tickle me and I tickle thee" Society holds regular sessions to which every man in the State that has an "axe to grind" has a "complimentary ticket." A new party is being organized to defeat, if possible, the measures to be acted on by the Legislature and give the State at the next election to the Copperheads and the next Senatorship to the man who could see no difference between Lincoln and McClellan, excepting that "McClellan was a little the best." The effort will be to make it a little odious, if possible, by defeating every measure be proposed. The newspaper part in the play will be, the Review will blow away at the Governor and the Legislature and everybody else. No condemned rebel ever concocted mischief and poured it out on all loyal men and measures with greater gust since the first gun was fired on Sumter than does that traitorous sheet—and will, while the secesh in Oregon have money enough to keep the thing going. The Statesman in the meantime will try to [illegible] itself by [illegible] and will be neither one thing nor the other. It will go it between all questions till the called session does the work all up, passes the "Constitutional Amendment" and a stringent [illegible] law, and the people next year elect a loyal Senator over the masked Copperhead faction and then forsooth the Statesman will swear that it was all the time a strong advocate for all those things! The loyalty that flows from love of country is one thing and the loyalty that flows from self interest is another thing in a newspaper you know.

ITEMS—LOCAL.

The Rev. Mr. Wythe, President of the Willamette University, has arrived—quite an item, you may suppose, among the unfledged literati of the "Yale of the great West," as brother Waller would say.

Church suppers are all the go, now. The Methodist folks had one a few evenings ago in their popular, sleeves rolled up demonstrative way. The Episcopalians do the thing in regular kid glove style to-night, and the Baptists have one on hand just as soon as it rains a little more (they, you know, don't do a thing heavenward unless they plunge the drink first, as brother Boyakin would say). The Congregationalists will come up with a good "bill of fare" soon, but very cautiously, for some of the uncircumcised might drop in, and thereby make common what God has made par excellence, as brother Dickinson would say.

The hubbub consequent on one of the Smith's "closing out," has quieted down, crockery ware "lay around loose" about that time. All that saved the town from disgrace, was, the people were too honest, as they always are in Salem, to touch a thing that don't belong to them.

Somebody's big panorama was on exhibition here last week to the great delight of the lovers of fine paintings. You have read about heaven? Well it was in that picture, just as natural!

Our friend Rev. Boyakin has been electrifying us with a series of lectures on the Revelations. He walks in among the ugly "beasts with horns," like Herr Driesbach among the lions. He doesn't wear gloves in the pulpit and has waked up quite a muss among several parties.

Meteoric "Sallie Thayer" the actress, paid us a short visit before she went to San Francisco. As a matter of course, the lovers of the stage always flutter with pleasure when so brilliant a star as "Sallie" beams down on our Puritan town, while the "most straightest sect of our religion" do penance all the time she remains. From Water street to "Piety Hill" the sensation is about as it used to be in the old Bay colony in the days of witch burning. All that saves "Sallie," is the Catholic clergy who have the keys of purgatory, and some of our Protestant clergy are too pious to go and borrow them, or the "actress" would go up the spout! If "Sallie's" visits to our town do no other good, they at least give that class of sanctimonious folks the opportunity to do penance all the time she stays, and rush out and shout, and "thank God they are not like other men." The actress in the meantime, sweeps the firmament like the moon among stars—brim full of life and joyous fun.

Have you any power to hurry up the called session? The politicians are in quite a fever here and can scarcely wait in patience till the session comes on. For their sakes do hurry it up.

Yours, ONE OF THE SMITHS

LINN COUNTY STATISTICS.—We are indebted to Mr. B. W. Redmond, Assessor for Linn county, for the following statistics in regard to the population, products and valuation of real and personal property for the year 1865. The valuation of real estate according to the Assessor's figures is only about one half of its real or estimated value in the market, at this time. The price of land in every part of the county has advanced materially since July, which was about the time the assessment was made.

The total population of the county is 7,691, divided as follows:

Voters	1,997
Males between 10 and 21 years of age	900
under 10 years of age	1,460
Females over 18	1,370
between 10 and 18 years of age	741
under 10 years	1,063
Excess of males 21 and upward over females 18 and upwards	497
Excess of females between 10 and 21 over of males between 10 and 16	169
Males under 10 excess of females under 10	67
Total valuation of property	$2,4[illegible],816
Real estate	1,068,216
Personal property	1,419,600
Number of acres of land in cultivation	44,315
bushels of wheat	3[illegible]0,118
oats	299,0[illegible]5
barley	6,[illegible]
rye	71
corn	9,642
potatoes	23,444
apples	54,9[illegible]1
tons of hay	1,888
pounds wool	11[illegible],248
[illegible]	4,4[illegible]
tobacco	[illegible]
butter	281,4[illegible]3
free gold dust	118
sheep	18,473
horses	38
mules	49
cattle	590,000
hogs	21,175
[illegible]	590,000

The number of sheep have increased about one third in the last year. There is also an increase of wheat, corn, oats and every staple article of production which shows a healthy progressive movement for the industrial interests of the county.—Albany Journal.

FEMALE GAMBLERS.—The New York correspondent of the Cincinnati Gazette writes:

Gambling this season has not been confined to the masculine habitues of the watering places. It has grown the fashion for women to play, and many of our richest females have been infected with the mania. Women do everything to excess, and for once they will enter into the most exciting amusement with extravagant ardor. The largest players in Baden Baden and other continental spas, it is well known are women; and I have no doubt before the Winter is over in New York that some husbands and fathers will anathematize the hour when their wives and daughters learned the latest and most expensive dissipation.

TOWN IMPROVEMENTS.—Albany is certainly the most flourishing town in Oregon. There are more new buildings now going up or in progress of completion than ever before, and the number built during the year exceeds that of any town this side of Portland. Yet a [illegible] dwelling shop, [illegible] building is here in the place, although the demand for it is daily increasing. During the fall [illegible] lately erected are among the most substantial and elegant in the State. There is enterprise and wealth here, and the two go hand in hand harmoniously for the public welfare.—Ib.

We believe such parties [illegible] made to understand the estimation in which [illegible] held by community. It would be right that [illegible] the gifts of fortune be made to feel [illegible] everywhere objects of detestation and that [illegible] jingles in their pockets bears the stamp of [illegible] We beg the indulgence of our readers for a slight [illegible] the subject but to review the alarming [illegible] in this city there appears no manner of [illegible] our families and it is our natural desire [illegible] personal aim to harness the [illegible] upon those among us who father [illegible]

[illegible] Pursuits.—One day last week we vis[ited the] blind and door factory of Mr. Walker [illegible] and Clay streets, on the river bank [illegible] the exterior does not present any very [illegible] but is of considerable proportions [illegible] in size in the shape of an L two and [illegible] high. On entering the ground floor we [were agreea]bly surprised to see the busy tenor of [illegible] Walker has a steam flue boiler 20 feet [illegible] in diameter and an engine [illegible] inches [illegible] stroke, to supply the motive power [illegible] A new Huntington mill for re-sawing [illegible] set up. This is a fine machine and one [illegible] to such an establishment in splitting [illegible] to any desired thickness. The system [illegible] something entirely new it having lately [illegible] One of a different pattern has been in [illegible] establishment for years, and has a circular [illegible] invention is an upright saw. Glazing [illegible] turning, planing, scroll and other [illegible] placed on the first floor. The second [illegible] approved machinery for cutting and [illegible] mortising, &c. One little machine [illegible] much attention from its insignificant [illegible] we found to be one of the most useful in [illegible] of the age. It proved to be one of S. C. Ellis [illegible] When set and in motion by a [illegible] a workman is enabled to cut sixty slats in [illegible] These saws closely arranged on either side of [illegible] hands performing the work, the outside [illegible] strip the ends of the slat, the center [illegible] the tenon, and the inside ones cutting the [illegible] of the slat, both ends alike. A shaping machine [illegible] moulding, etc., is also among the vari[ous] [illegible] working in the second story. The [illegible] for storing moulding to keep it dry [illegible] large force of men are constantly employed [illegible] and the materials made find a [illegible] of us as the Blue Mountains in the [illegible] places on the line of steam naviga[tion].

[illegible] give place to the following para[graph] [illegible] "Veritas," written to us by one [illegible] of the place. The letter in whole [illegible] state of things already quite well know to [illegible] along the streets, and we have no room [illegible] Veritas says:

[illegible] question, it is a wonder with [illegible] citizens, who know the facts, why the [illegible] are so far famed as to be allowed Police [illegible] and to have the city "guardians" at [illegible] call. We have more than once lately had [illegible] this city of respectable homes being invaded [illegible] and dissolute ladies, mothers of fami[lies] [illegible] in a most disgraceful manner. In these [illegible] respectable people) no whistle was at [illegible] watchmen to the rescue of insulted [illegible] Is it that decent Americans have to hunt [illegible] these low disgusting specimens of [illegible] are privileged to such a degree? If the [illegible] creatures inhabit were not so faithfully [illegible] might soon get rid of them and the value [illegible] of the city they now occupy would be trans[formed into] a thriving business locality. The line has suc[ceeded beyond] the expectations of its projectors, and [illegible] in the spring from tri-weekly to daily [illegible] teams so far have not failed to arrive and [illegible] and the operations of the company [illegible] with such regularity and precision [illegible] confidence is felt by shippers in the [illegible] shown by the increasing demand for [illegible] Mr. DeBell has been in this city for [illegible] preparing for the winter arrangements [illegible] for the upper country by the New World.

Gold Creek, Montana Territory.—[illegible] Creek or American [illegible] is the name of a tributary of Hellgate river, which comes into that stream from the [illegible] about twelve miles below the Little Blackfoot. The creek carries a few hundred inches of water and after falling very rapidly from a cluster of remarkably broken [illegible] granite peaks, [illegible] through a high gravel [illegible] of [illegible] with [illegible] Hellgate river. Gold was discovered on this creek in the flat and gravel [illegible] in 1861 and has been worked [illegible] considerable profit. Some pretty rich [illegible] were found [illegible] tributary creeks [illegible] are still at work on them. At the mouth of the creek a settlement [illegible] houses was built in 1861 [illegible] a portion of the houses are [illegible] occupied and a part of them were burnt last year. Four years ago the Blackfoot Indians infested the adjacent country and on [illegible] bears marks of where the [illegible] they have tried to cut away the gate frames to steal a [illegible] of horses which was enclosed at night. The gate was built with an iron frame [illegible] between two boards and the Indians patiently cut into the wood until their knives [illegible] when they desisted. The scene of witnessed one of those cases of swift retributive vengeance which so frequently overtakes criminals in the mountains of Montana. The circumstances are these: Two men [illegible] at the camp of a man named Bull who was camped on Elk City prairie, in the Nez Perces mines, in the fall of 1862, and asked to stay all night. Bull kindly entertained them and they with detestable ingratitude got up in the night and stole five horses and mules from him. Bull nothing discouraged by the fact that he was sick at the time with ague and fever, [star]ted with a friend in pursuit. Crossing the [illegible] Rocky mountains one hundred and sixty miles to Fort Owen, he followed them down the Bitter Root river thirty miles to Hellgate and [illegible] five miles up the Hellgate river to Gold Creek. Twenty days had elapsed and the thieves felt safe from pursuit. When Bull arrived in the camp he called upon a trader, to whom he had letters explaining his errand, and from him learned that the men were at that time in a neighboring drinking house. Hastily loading a double-barrelled shotgun Bull accompanied by the friend who had attended him from Elk City went over to the drinking house. This establishment was a low hewn log cabin with a thatched roof and here were the long sought villains who had set him afoot. One of them saw Bull as he came up and immediately jumped upon a horse which was hitched to the corral and fled. The other, whose name was Bill Arnett, was dealing a game of monte. As Bull entered the door Arnett recognized him. Springing to his feet with his cards in one hand, with the other hand he reached for his pistol. But Bull was too quick for him and brought him to the ground dead with two charges of buckshot and slugs. The other man was pursued about ten miles down the river—caught—brought back, and hung on a gallows hastily improvised by two logs laid over the top of the [corr]al with a cross piece tied on it. Both were buried in a clump of bushes near by which grew around a stagnant water-hole and Arnett was laid in the grave with his monte cards still grasped in his hand. The verdict of the miners was "Served 'em right."—Wasatinee

Protection to the Negro.—A dispatch dated at Washington, October 11th says:

In Alexandria, Va., recently a fowling piece was taken by a Justice of the Peace from a colored man on the ground that the statutes of Virginia rendered such possession by a negro illegal. Provost Judge Hambeck addressed a letter to the Mayor of Alexandria, saying that in all such cases or in similar cases which may occur hereafter, the colored people will be protected by him in any infringement of a right guaranteed to white citizens. Hereafter no colored man will be arrested when found with a gun in his possession, nor will he be liable to arrest as I understand he now is if found in the streets after 10 o'clock at night. I will further state that this plan will be strictly adhered to. The colored man must be regarded so far as the right of property and freedom of person is concerned precisely on the same footing as the white citizen—no more, no less.

Tea Culture in Georgia.—A man who has been raising tea as an experiment since 1860 writes to the Savannah Herald that the most of his plants grew finely, that his tea is of good quality, and that the plants will do quite as well in Georgia as in their native country. The plants require no culture after the third year. If well taken care of, by that time they will be large enough to commence the manufacture of tea from them. The yield of the acre is from three to four hundred pounds and the plants produce good crops for eighteen or twenty years. The growth of tea is not effected by dry or wet weather, or by storms and insects will not molest the plants.

A new specimen of "Brummagem ware" has been invented in England. It is the manufacture of precious stones and mosaics out of mineral earths. The mineral earths are pounded into a paste, and in that state can receive any tint. The paste can then be converted into brooches, door knockers, agates, chimney pieces, picture frames, crucifixes, and an infinite variety of articles.

The Louisville Press says Gen. Palmer has been indicted for abducting slaves under his celebrated order granting free passes across the Ohio. We presume he is legally indictable and there are counties enough in Kentucky where juries could be found to convict. Slavery is scotched, not killed, in that State. New Jersey will put another red hot iron on it.

A lady in Plymouth, Mass., knit 480 pairs of stockings for our soldiers during the war.—Abolition paper.

But who got the socks?—Review.

Milk is kept good longer if it is boiled, evaporated, condensed, or kept still at a temperature of about forty degrees. If heated three days in succession in summer and two in winter (as per Guy Lussac's experiments), up to the boiling point, it will keep two months without souring.

"This is a white man's country," say the negro phobists. Let us see. Labor makes the country. White labor made the North rich and powerful, powerful to crush the rebellion. Black labor made the South, and per sequence the South is "the black man's country."

Rebel Schemes of Assassination

From the appendix to Raymond's Life of President Lincoln we take the following important document relating to rebel schemes of assassination It is thus conclusively shown that the idea of assassinating the Union leaders was not peculiar to Booth and his accomplices, but that it was canvassed by parties in Europe as well as in America. Here are the documents referred to.

Allusion is made in the preceding pages to warnings which reached the Government at various times, of plots on foot against the lives of the President and other eminent officials In reply to a letter of this kind from Hon. John Bigelow, then American Consul at Paris, Mr. Seward, the Secretary of State, wrote as follows

DEPARTMENT OF STATE, WASHINGTON,
July 15, 1864

* * * There is no doubt that, from a period antecedent to the breaking out of the insurrection, plots and conspiracies for the purposes of assassination have been frequently formed and organized, and it is not unlikely that such a one as has been reported to you is now in agitation among the insurgents. If it be so, it need furnish no ground for anxiety. Assassination is not an American practice or habit, and one so vicious and so desperate cannot be ingrafted into our political system This conviction of mine has steadily gained strength since the civil war began. Every day's experience confirms it. The President during the heated season occupies a country house near the Soldiers' Home, two or three miles from the city. He goes to and from that place on horseback night and morning unguarded. I go there unattended at all hours, by daylight and moonlight, by starlight, and without any light

At a later date, very soon, indeed, before the assassination of the President and the horrible attempt upon his own life, Mr Seward received the following communication from our Consul in London. It was upon the strength of these letters that the consultation was held to which allusion is made in the preceding page:

U S. CONSULATE, LONDON, March 17, 1865

My Dear Sir I herewith inclose for your perusal two private letters received this week from "B," my secret agent in France. On receiving the first, dated March 12th, I immediately wrote to him for a more full statement of all he knew about its contents. I stated to him that the story seemed very improbable; that if they intended to resort to such diabolical modes of warfare, they could find instruments enough near at hand to serve them in such a capacity, and have their work done or attempted more speedily than it could be by sending [illegible] from Europe, that the assassins would be sure to forfeit their own lives, etc. At the same time I could not shut out from my mind the idea that the starving of our [illegible], shooting and torturing them, the hotel burnings, the piracies, the hanging of Union men in the insurgent States, the murdering of prisoners of war in cold blood after surrendering, and their manifold acts of cruelty, rendered the purposes named not only probable, but in harmony with their character and acts. My letter brought the further explanation contained in the second letter of the 12th instant. You perceive the statement of "B," rests on the declaration of ——, or a man who now goes by that name. He is a business agent of the rebels, and has the confidence of the leaders to as great an extent perhaps as any one employed by them, or any under their direction. He travels most of the time from place to place, giving directions and superintending the purchase and shipment of war material. "B" has traveled much with him, and [illegible] to have his entire confidence I do not think [illegible] would make such a revelation to "B" unless he believed it well founded. If they are to come out openly as professional assassins, it is not at all probable that the distinguished persons named are the only ones selected for their vengeance, or that our Chief Magistrate, or General Grant, are left out of their role. The dangers they see to them in the calm forbearance, the inflexible justice and firm determination of President Lincoln, will not be overlooked by them.

According to my request, a full description of the man calling himself Clark is given in the second letter. Johnston is unknown to "B." If Clark has really set forth on such a mission, he will probably attempt to make his way into Sherman's camp as a private soldier, and attempt the deed during an [illegible] when Sherman is under fire.

Whether there is any actual foundation for what is set forth in the letters or not, I think it my duty to withhold them [illegible] that it may be only another added to the [illegible] false [illegible] which have got into [illegible] I have been able to [illegible] [illegible] you may [illegible] you may [illegible] Permit me to express my [illegible] whatever may be the wish of the [illegible] to you, and I dare say they [illegible] fiendish brains can [illegible] life may long be spared to [illegible] and the service of the Republic.

I am, dear sir, most truly yours,
F. H. MORSE.

Hon. William H. Seward, Sec'y of State.

P. S.—Please regard B.'s letters as strictly confidential, I [illegible] as far as the name of the writer is concerned.

PARIS, Sunday, March 12, 1865

My Dear Sir I wrote you on Friday evening in hopes it would reach you at your hotel last evening. I have learned only an hour since, that on Tuesday or Wednesday a steamer will be in waiting at Belisle, or the Island of Oleron (the last named some forty miles off the mouth of Bordeaux River), with war material and supplies for the rams, most of the stuff is from Hamburg, reshipped on board of an English steamer, which has been chartered for the purpose. She is a Newcastle steamer, and said to be very swift. I must communicate at once with Walker at Ferrol Two desperate characters have just left here (on Wednesday, I believe, but not sure), one for the North and the other for the South; one of them I know, he has been loafing here for some time, hard up His name is Clark, the other Johnston, but to the best of my knowledge I had never seen him, he having been here only a few days Their object is the assassination of Sherman and Mr S—d. Clark is to join Sherman's army and to accomplish his deed. The other goes direct to Washington, and the first opportunity that offers kill Mr Seward. Their expenses are paid, and if successful in the accomplishment of their murderous designs, are to receive five thousand dollars each Here is a pretty state of affairs, and I fear these are not the only ones that they intend wreaking their vengeance upon and you must take immediate steps to convey this to Mr Seward and General Sherman; as I feel positive it is true for the party that divulged it to me has the great est confidence in me, and would not have said such a thing to me were it not true They think by getting rid of Mr Seward that it will be utterly impossible to get another as able to fill his place, as they say, so rabid for the utter annihilation of the Southern cause. And Sherman being the only real General that we have got, if he could be got rid of, the task is an easy one, as there is no Yankee, to use their expression, to be found that can fill his place And only see the ingenuity of the rebels here, they have caused to be circulated and it is quite current, that General Sherman is dead This is done for the sole cause to prepare the public mind to receive his death beforehand, so as that they may not be taken by surprise It is from beginning to end a deep laid plot, and the Devil himself is no match for them. I have given you all the facts so far as I know, and at once, as I considered it my duty so to do as soon as possible, so that you may convey it to Washington with all dispatch I don't know this Johnston, or I would describe him, so that he might be arrested at once, but to my knowledge I have never seen him Cooper came last night and spent an hour with me On leaving he said he would return and dine with me, but about an hour since I learned that he went off in haste to Cherbourg I don't know what's up there as I have heard nothing from them, but there must be something in the wind Friday a courier was sent off as I stated to you, as I was asked to go, but being ill I could not and to day Cooper leaving so suddenly, looks suspicious I can give you a full description of Clark at once, if you wish it I am better and quite able to undertake the journey to Bordeaux or Ferrol, but as yet keep myself in [illegible], so that I may not be called on to go anywhere for them before I hear from you, then I can excuse myself for a few days in the country so as to be able to get to Bordeaux I hope you have received my note on Saturday evening and written me to day If I am to go to B there is no time to be lost If you have not written me before you receive this, send me twenty pounds, so that I may be prepared for any emergency Hoping that all of the first of the [illegible] will be received at Washington in time to frustrate the hellish designs,

I am truly yours, B

PARIS, March 14 1865 Dear Sir, Yours of yesterday came duly to hand this morning, and I answer in as brief manner as possible to its contents in every particular, as you request

The ram, at Bordeaux leaves that port to go to Germany, where report says she is to be sold to the Prussian Government Beside the other—now the Stonewall in Confederate hands, lying at Ferrol Spain—leave Bordeaux, for the Danish Government They must use strategy to get them out of a French port—once out, they can do as they please with her I am perfectly satisfied and I believe it beyond a question of doubt that the ram now at Bordeaux belongs to and is intended for the use of the rebels, and will go into their hands, if not directly indirectly, especially if there is any pressure used by the French Government. But my opinion is, the Government will only wink at her departure. I have repeatedly (being one of the Order of the Sons) heard the above things discussed from time to time by McCullough, De Le[illegible] Houstis, Macfarlan, and others of the secret Order The Captain of the Stonewall, Captain Page, is here, and has been for some days (I forgot to mention this in my last), as well as several of the officers of the late rebel steamer Florida, and I believe they leave to day Stonewall is lying at Ferrol, and the Niagara is at Corrunna—two different harbors but not far apart I hear nothing as to when they intend to leave Ferrol, but this much I have learned—that when they are ready to go to sea they will run one to Corunna where the Niagara is, and demand of the Spanish Government twenty four hours detention of the Niagara, so as to unable them to put to sea But if Commodore Cravan adopts the plan I suggested when I last saw him, this plan of theirs will be easily evaded Clark I believe to be the real name of the party of whom I wrote you in my last he has been hanging on here for some time They could have no possible object in imposing on me in this particular That's his business, and both he and Johnston have gone, for the avowed purpose, as I have before stated to you, of taking the lives of Mr Seward and General Sherman. I have not the least doubt that others are watching for the same opportunity The opinion is with many of them here, that Mr Seward is de facto the President, and does just as he pleases, and were it not for him they could come to some amicable arrangement It would be useless for me to repeat to you all that I hear on the subject, and the arguments pro and con This Clark, I believe, has some other mission as well as that of seeking the life of General Sherman He is in hight above five feet nine inches, rather slender, thin in flesh, high cheek-bones, low forehead, eyes dark and sunken, very quiet, seldom or ever speaks in company unless spoken to, has a large dark brown mustache, and large, long goatee, hair much darker than whiskers, and complexion rather sallow While he wore gray clothes and wide-awake slouch hat He is a Texan by birth, has a very determined look, and from all appearances, I should judge, would, if possible, accomplish whatever he undertakes The other man, Johnston, I know nothing of, as he was only here some three or four days—he came from Canada, via Liverpool—nor would it be prudent for me to make any inquiries concerning him, under the circumstances, as, if anything ever transpires, and he was taken, suspicion from that fact might point to me. And I beg that on no occasion will you ever make use of my name, so that they could get any clue to me, if you did from that moment my fate would be sealed, especially as I have bound myself to their cause, under as fearful an oath. I once entertained a very high opinion of the Southerners, but from recent facts and events I have changed those opinions, and now my firm belief is that they would stop at no act, if necessary to accomplish their dear, cherished Confederation. The offer, five thousand dollars, is a good one, and there is to be found plenty who would gladly catch it "You cannot for one moment have the slightest idea of their feelings toward the North, and it increases as their struggle becomes more desperate The heads here are in daily consultation, and what is there discussed I have no [illegible] of ascertaining. It was Cooper who told me of these two men going out on their diabolical mission, or I perhaps should never have heard of the matter at all, and I consider it my duty to convey to you the facts as I got them, at once, so that, if possible, their designs might be thwarted, and every precaution taken that was necessary; for I repeat again what I have already done to you before—they are bent on destruction, and will not stop at any object, even to the taking of life, so as to attain their ends—and mark me, Mr. Seward is not the only one they will assassinate I have heard some fearful oaths, and it is a war to the teeth with them I feel confident that there is some secret understanding between them and the Emperor of this Government, at least I am given to understand so The death of the Duke de Morny has deprived them of an interview with the Emperor, which was to have taken place, if I am rightly informed, on Sunday last. My sickness has prevented me from being fully posted to all recent movements, but I am in hopes that my health will in a short time be fully re established, and after my return from Bordeaux I shall be in possession of all movements I have written at some length, but required, as you requested a full explanation of the foregoing facts Be kind enough to see that my name is not used at Washington, for there are plenty on the sharp lookout there, and it would be heralded back here, and it might prove fatal for me I believe I can not add anything more at present You did not send me all I requested, please send it at once to Bordeaux by return of mail I leave for Bordeaux to-night, and will do as you request

Believe me truly yours, B

RAGUSA OF THE DEEP —Four hundred years ago there flourished a city on the shores of the Adriatic, numbering many thousand, filled with churches and abounding in wealth, but remarkable for the wickedness and cruelty of its people They excelled the world in burning heretics persecuting originators of new ideas Suddenly an earthquake sunk nine tenths of their city more than 100 feet below the level of the sea The waters of the Adriatic closed over their spires palaces and prison houses, and nothing was left of Ragusa but wretched scattering suburbs Peasants, even to this day, have a marvellous legend. They say it went down so straight that scarcely a wall was broken or a steeple prostrated that the wicked inhabitants had charmed lives and are still under the dominion of Neptune following their old pursuits, all unconscious of the world above them As the Dalmatian fisherman sails his shallop over the quiet sea at even tide, looking down into the still blue depths he is startled by the hum of strange voices rising from the streets of this city of the old strange voices shrieking cursing imploring in a dead language, but refusing to be hushed even in death In this upper world twelve generations have passed away kingdoms and dynasties have risen and fallen the bayonet has supplanted the spear and the battle ax the cannon the battering ram, knowledge has triumphed over force, and the fires of bigotry are extinguished Italy is free But down in the magic streets of the submarine city, all the habits and customs of the mid lle ages are yet maintained.

A WORD ON WIGS —The invention of periwigs, writes an old author is of so great a use and saves men so much trouble that it can never be laid aside It helps to disguise the thief, to make an ill face tolerable, and to make men their vassals—if women would but wear them Time has negatived those authoritative opinions The reader does not need to be informed that periwigs have long since been dispensed with swept away to the limbo of obsolete and worn out fashions Here and there, it is true, a peruke still survives as a sort of a specimen of a race hastening to extinction, as a ghost of a glory departed forever The man of fashion laughs at to scorn and the doctor knows it not, the divine shrinks from it The most conservative of bishops would never re dream of crowning his poll with a bushy [illegible] than of donning a wreath of roses On the bench and at the bar the wig still prevails, however lawyers so love and cling to precedent, the court will give no audience, and justice is deaf as well as blind to the counsellor without his wig In the legal tribunal its last stronghold, the wig rules with severity—small states are ever the most despotic; on the bench and at the bar yes, and on the coach-box, for, unaccountable fact coachmen of distinction still wear wigs In this unexpected place, outside the carriage, the wig still governs as one sometimes sees a power possessing small plots of territory inconveniently situated in the very midst of a neighbor's land —Once a Week.

PRESIDENT LEE —The correspondent of the New York Herald writing from Lexington Virginia, October 24 giving an account of the installation of General Lee as President of Washington College says

A gentleman with whom I have conversed and who saw General Lee and heard him talk and express freely his opinions on national affairs nearly every day of his sojourn at Rockbridge Springs spoke of him as the most modest and unassuming man he ever encountered and yet, while frank most firm giving his views He counsels hopeful submission to the Government and earnest striving to bring about the old state of peace, industry thrift and content He has the greatest confidence in President Johnson and the good and equitable wishes and intentions of the Government and the Northern people in carrying out the scheme of reconstruction

WHAT WILL YOU DO? —The three hundred millions of National Bank circulation have been taken and the notes are broadcast What does the Union platform of the State propose in that case —changing the character of our currency We cannot have a National bank for the limit has been reached The notes of the existing banks, we have already and we give and take them at a discount of only 2½ per cent from gold Could they go more favorably? What do you propose to do? To say what we now call seventy five cents shall be called a dollar? Nonsense Nothing more You will enhance the value of nothing, nor cheapen anything The trade of the world—exchange between nations will settle values as heretofore, and legislation cannot make six bits buy a dollar's worth of ore containing silver Humboldt Register
